HOW ARE YOUR NEW YEARS RESOLUTIONS COMING ALONG??

Well here we are 30 days into the new year, and how many of us are looking around thinking “Wow, that resolution certainly didn’t make much difference!”

It’s a given – we have the best of intentions, and within thirty to sixty days we’re off track. It may have started with a “well, I’ll start again tomorrow” or a “it’s just one day (or one dessert, or one missed appointment, or one argument, or , or, or....you fill in the blank!)”

So let’s see what we can do about it! New Years Resolutions are a great idea – we love the opportunity to draw the line on the past, and start fresh. (See article on page 6)

Every Day is New Year's

What are your goals for the new year? What are you creating?? New Year's is always a time for looking at what you've accomplished over the past year, and what you intend to create during the coming year. It's a time to gather the lessons of the past and use them to powerfully create your future. It's a time to remember both the successes and the failures, realizing that both are vital parts of life, and that both success and failure provide us with the tools required to design our lives from what we want, rather than from avoiding what we don't want.

New Year's Resolutions have a habit of being just another place where we quickly become resigned and cynical – we've all failed at keeping those great sounding ideas before! But consider, we say what we want, but then we don't put anything into place to support our accomplishing that goal. This year, try something new: find a partner in keeping your resolution(s)! Find someone who will either benefit from your accomplishing your goal, or someone else who is out to accomplish the same or a similar goal. Set up a schedule of regular communication – probably at first it will need to be daily, until you form the habits that will support you in accomplishing your goals. For these communications, we use a three-tiered format:

"What's Working?"

"What's Not Working?"

and "What could we add that could produce the result?"

It's amazing what happens when you use these three simple questions. It is especially important that you start the conversation with "What's Working?" This lays a foundation of accomplishment, and acknowledgement of the results you're producing. Standing on that foundation of accomplishment, it is much easier to look at what's not working (which is where you can go to work!) And then bring the power of creating: looking at what actions you could add, that could produce the results you intend.

One last note about New Year's Resolutions; what if you make every day New Year's?? If you think about it, it's always the first day of a new year: it's the first day of the rest of your life! Make your resolutions daily – newly (hint: that's how you keep any resolution over an extended time!) Make the most of it, today! Say what you want, and then take the actions to REACH YOUR GOALS, and REALIZE YOUR DREAMS!

The 7 Components of Effective Leadership!

Powerful leadership is exactly what most of us look for, in ourselves as well as outside ourselves. We look for people who provide that extraordinary quality that pulls people toward them, makes great endeavors appear effortless, and, in short, make us envious!

So we went to look for what constitutes effective leadership – what is this quality that creates powerful leaders? The first component we identified is that every one of the powerful leaders is CLEAR ON WHAT THEY ARE COMMITTED TO. They speak it at every opportunity. They don't hem and haw, or stutter, when people ask what they are up to and what they intend to accomplish.

Powerful Leaders know that THEY ARE THE ONE! They recognize that they are the source, the catalyst for creating their vision. They don't depend on others to make it happen – that's always their job! And they take on that accountability with all of their attention and intention.

Effective leaders are clear on the EXPECTATIONS – their own and those of others. They communicate clearly – what is expected, and what they can be counted on for.

Powerful leadership requires POWERFULLY CREATING TEAM. Effective leadership derives from a shared commitment, inside of which each individual team member can realize their own goals.

Effective Leadership means MANAGING THE RESULTS we want to produce. Instead of trying to manage each and every action, powerful leaders keep their eye on the target, the results to be produced, and then have the teams action align to those goals.

Powerful Leaders are experts in MANAGING RESOURCES. Effective leadership requires that you allocate appropriately a wide variety of resources, including both financial and human assets and resources.

Powerful leaders are MASTERS OF COMMUNICATION. Not only can they communicate where they want to go, but they can effectively communicate that to anyone, in such a way that people are called into action, and empowered to produce the results that will lead the way to the desired goal.

And finally, effective leadership requires STRUCTURES FOR SUCCESS. Powerful leaders have planned it out, mapped it out. They know the results that have to happen, and the actions to be taken to produce those results. They've put those actions and results into time – scheduled them for themselves and for team members. And they manage for the success of those structures!!
